AERONAUTICAL INFORMATION CIRCULAR

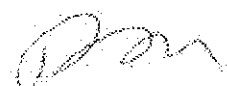

AIC B28/94 is hereby replaced

Approval of pilots testing of aircraft for renewal of certificates or airworthiness

The flight performance testing of aircraft for the issue or renewal of a certificate of airworthiness may only be carried out by pilots who have been approved in writing by the General Manager to carry out such tests. When an application for issue or renewal of certificate of airworthiness is received the applicant will be informed, in writing, as to whether the flight test is to be conducted by a pilot of the Authority or an authorised pilot for the purpose by the General Manager in terms of this circular.

Approval to conduct these tests will normally be granted to holders commercial airline transport pilot licences who are employed full time by an aircraft maintenance organization or an aircraft operator holding an air service permit. In the interests of standardization the number of approved pilots in an organization will be limited to the number which, at the discretion of the General Manager, is considered adequate to conduct the necessary tests.

Requests for approval must be made in writing to the General Manager, who in granting any approval, may specify such requirements to be met by the applicant as he considers appropriate in the particular case.

K. Kaseke
Acting General Manager
